Postal Savings Banks

The war in Europe is proving a big boon to postal savings in this country. From the very day hostilities opened across the sea postal-savings receipts began to increase by leaps and bounds and withdrawals fell off, a result quite contrary to the predictions of many well-informed persons who, in their imagination, saw lines of feverish depositors at post-office pay windows anxious to again return their savings to the boot-leg and body-felt depositors whence they came before intrusted to Uncle Sam. But the forecasters failed to reckon on the absolute confidence of the American citizen, regardless of the flag that first met his eyes, in the ability and purpose of the Government to carry out its obligations, not only among the nations of the earth, but with the humblest citizen of our land.

Two important results have followed: thousands of people largely of foreign birth, accustomed to send their savings abroad, are now patrons of our postal-savings system; and enormous sums of actual cash have been released for commercial uses among our own people at a time when the need for every available dollar is pressing.

The growth of postal-savings in the United States has been steady and healthy and the system has filled an important gap between the tin-can depositor and the factory paymaster. On July 1, when affairs were running smoothly here and abroad and the transmission of money across the Atlantic was safe and expeditious, there was approximately $43,000,000 of postal savings standing to the credit of about 388,000 depositors. Since then over $10,000,000 of deposits have added and the number of depositors has increased enormously. This unprecedented gain is the more striking when it is considered that the net gain in the last three months is larger than the gain for the entire fiscal year 1914. Scores of offices have done more postal-savings business since the war has been going on than was done by them during the previous existence of the service. The increases are confined to no special localities, but have been felt in every nook and corner of the country. New York City alone made a gain in September of more than a million, while Brooklyn showed a relatively big increase. Chicago reported a larger gain in the past three months than for the previous twelve months. More than 7,000 new accounts were opened during the period, bringing the number of depositors in that city up to over 21,000.

The unexpected increase in postal-savings business has not only added greatly to the general administrative duties of the system, but has brought up many new and interesting problems which have called for the careful personal consideration of Postmaster General Burleson and Governor Dockery. Third Assistant Postmaster General. But their task has been lightened somewhat by the promptness of depository banks in furnishing additional security to meet the abnormal deposits. A number of the largest banks in the country, which have heretofore declined to qualify as depositories for postal-savings funds, are now among the eager applicants for them.

The deposits at the local office at American Fork have increased $300, during the last three months, there seems to be a growing sentiment to take hold of the absolute safety the government affords.

Something Like Snobbery.
The Montreal Gazette notes that a college woman who has been investigating sociological conditions in New York "was surprised to find that the waitresses in a cheap restaurant where she worked for a while incognito were honest and kindly and happy." The Gazette wonders at her "surprise," and asks: "Does a person to be decent and good have to be a sociologist of independent means?"

PAINT AND OIL MACHINERY

There are now many implements that have completed their share of the season's work. Have you properly housed them? Do not leave them under a tree or a leaky shed, but see to it that they are put away until they shall be used again.

All working parts of the machines or implements should be oiled thoroughly, as oil will prevent the bearing from rusting. A rusted bearing will work stiff and hard, and its life will be short. Use a little gasoline or kerosene on the bearing in the spring and it will clear all thickened oil and grease. This care of your machinery will pay for the time spent in the ease and lightness with which the machine will work.

The use of a little paint will not only protect the wood from decay but will add to the appearance and to its value. The wooden parts of the farm equipment, when exposed to the wind and weather, have a tendency to dry out, crack and warp. Many a machine's usefulness is impaired by weakened parts, and at times the total use of the implement. It is wonderful the value a little paint has when applied every time it is needed.

The successful farmer knows the effect of a little judicious care upon his equipment. The satisfaction obtained through working with properly cared for tools will more than pay for the time spent in keeping them in good shape.—Utah Farmer.

Ladies Darken Your Gray Hair

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody will Know.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is fussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, and abundant.

The man who comes out boldly asserting that his knowledge is superior to that of someone else will never be taken at his word. Let the other fellow tell about your superiority. If it is worth telling, it will soon go the rounds.

Loyalty is three-fourths of the battle.

Be faithful to whatever interests you. It is one of the best traits in man, and, as he grows older, develops into one of the greatest assets. Sometimes a man will feel himself becoming indifferent to his employer and to his work. That is just the time for him to find another employer, because he is no good where he is, and he is wasting his own and his employer's time.

There is no use being anything but natural. A bluffer is rarely accepted at his face value. No sane man should try to pretend he is something he is not.

There is nothing in being independent. No matter how high a man goes in business life, he is to a great extent dependent on others. One of the greatest guides in going through business life, and one that will point you right always, is self-control. It is pretty hard work to swallow your pride at times, but most times everything is all right in fact, better—after you have swallowed it.

Watching the clock will not get a man anywhere. Hard work and the average amount of common sense will shove you along quicker than anything else.

Doing things in a limpy, listless way is not really doing them. Things are only done well when there is plenty of heart behind the effort.

In every game of sport there is a penalty prescribed for every kind of foul. Every man who has been in business many years will tell you it pays to play fair in all dealings.

Play a little every day, if its only a good laugh or enjoying a good story at luncheon with some of your friends. It holds the capacity for play in good condition and keeps a man in better shape for work.

Put a porous plaster on the chest and take a good cough syrup interally if you would treat a severe case of sore lungs properly. Get the dollar size BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP. With each bottle there is a free HERRICK'S RED PEPPER POROUS PLASTER for the chest, sold by William Thornton.
